STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 14.—An intimation that Dr. Finn Amundsen was still alive when his companion left him on the ice was received by the Swedish Government today. As a consequence the Admiralty has ordered search for him.By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 14.— Capt. Sora, Italian chasseur, and companion, the Dutch engineer, Van Dongen, were rescued from Foye Island by a party consisting of two Swedish naval seaplanes and one Finnish plane, says a result received from the Swedish military expedition at Spitzbergen today.The machines took off from Foye Island shortly after 11 o'clock Friday night and flew in a fog for as long as 20 miles to the east where the northern point of this island was being waded by the men who set out more than two days ago with dog teams in an attempt to take him to the stranded rest of the Italia.The seaplanes came down on water on the Eastern coast of the island. Capt. Sora was taken aboard one of the Swedish seaplanes and Van Dongen was taken aboard the Finnish plane.The three machines had difficulty in getting away, for the ice had been broken up by the wind and possibly by the landing of the machines, but at length they took off and flew back to their base through a thick fog, landing safely at 2 o'clock in the morning.The Swedish planes were piloted by Capt. Torbjorn, leader of the Italian expedition, and by Lieut.
Amundsen, while the Finnish plane was piloted by M. Lihl.Search Continues for Six Men Who Drifted in Dirigible's Bag.By the Associated Press.
KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, July 14.—With 10 men saved from death in the Arctic, rescue planes were intent today on reaching the last of the missing men who were shot some 20 miles to the east of Foye Island. There it was thought that six men who drifted away in the balloon part of the expedition, and possibly Ronald Amundsen and his five companions, on which rescue seaplanes might be able to reach.The latest to be rescued, Capt.
Sora of the Italian Alpine Chassours and the Dutch engineer, Van Dongen, who had attempted to make a perilous march over the ice to search for Italia castaways, were aboard the base ship Albatross today. They were taken off Foye Island by airplanes and brought to Kings Bay.Dependence in Soviet Flyer.
The position of the men cast away on Foye Island since he been encountered by the Italians, Capt.
Sopo Zappi and Alberto Mariano, directed the Krasin to rescue from an iceberg. The rescue and four companions were rescued down on the ice near Cape Foye, damaging their plane. They succeeded in reaching land, established a base, and busied themselves in repairing the broken landing gear of their craft.Italian planes also will join in the search over the ice of Queen Maud Sea in the neighborhood of 20 degrees, 45 minutes north and 20 degrees, 25 minutes west.
It is known that Amundsen held the view that the balloon party of the Italia would be found in the vicinity of the ice and he held the hope and the hope is held that his companions may have reached this point and become marooned with them. Dr.
Amundsen, Norwegian explorer, has always thought that the rescue of the Italia would be found in the vicinity of the ice. The rescue holds a similar view.The Norwegian icebreaker, Brama was making its way toward Cape Dane. He had started and was left at Cape Bruk with a dog team and provisions.

in, which rescued seven members of the Italia crew on Thursday,

TO ATLANTIC CITY ROADSteel and Concrete Elevated Highway, 70 Feet Wide, Planned at Cost of $50,000,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 14.—
Actual construction of a $50,- 000,000 double-deck steel and concrete elevated road between Atlantic City and Philadelphia will be started in 30 days, it is reported here.The roadway, which it is understood, will be built by the Pennsylvania Railroad and other interests, is to replace the electric lines now operating between the two cities.
According to specifications, it will be 70 feet wide, with two decks and will have three traffic lanes on each deck. The present tracks of the electric line will be used exclusively for freight. The first deck is to be used by the railroad for new high speed combined gas and electric cars. Ramps are to be built to the deck for these cars atWoodbury, Glassboro, Newfield, Maya Landing and Pleasantville.The upper deck is to be used for automobile traffic only. Private and passenger automobiles will be charged toll, but will be granted the privilege of using the company garage, to be built in Atlantic City.
A new patent roadbed, said to be of "everlasting" material, and the first of its kind in the country, will be used in the construction of the elevated roadway.The announcement also added that all rights of way and other legal matters necessary in connection with the proposition have already been straightened out, and that the undertaking should be completed by 1930.No stock will be put on the market in connection with the project.
It is said, all money necessary having been raised by the financial interests involved.LAWYERS FALL OUT OVER $150,000 FEEA. R. Russell Sues Former Partners, Declaring Fair Division Was Not Made.Three members of the law firm of Laughlin, Frumberg, Blodgett & Russell, which succeeded in obtaining a $300,000 settlement for Mrs.
Sophie Meier, farmer's wife of Gumbo, St. Louis County, in her suit for a daughter's share of the estate of William Edensborn, multimillionaire railroad owner, have split over the division of the $150,- 000 fee in the case.Under a contract which Mrs.
Meier signed with her lawyers, she received only half of the $300,000.
The other half was to be shared by the law firm and by Attorney John T. Fitzsimmons, who originally represented Mrs. Meier alone.
Alexander R. Russell, who was a member of the law firm, today filed suit at Clayton to collect $40,- 000 from Fitzsimmons, Abram M.
Frumberg and Randolph Laughlin.
Russell charged that he was entitled to $15,000, a tenth share of the $150,000, but that the three men named conspired to withhold payment from him. He sues for this $15,000 and for an additional $25,000 as punitive damages.Firm was recently dissolved.
Offices were in the National Bank of Commerce Building, where Laughlin and Frumberg still have quarters. Russell has moved to the Paul Brown Building.In a second suit, also filed at Clayton today, Russell asks for an accounting of other partnership fees from Laughlin, Frumberg and Blodgett, the last being merely a nominal defendant. It is understood Russell claims $23,000 is due to him in these cases, making the total suit in his two suits $68,000.Particular mention is made of cases which Laughlin handled for the late John T. Thompson, a wealthy contractor. One case involved the estate of Henry W.
Thompson, who was killed in an airplane crash. The case was against the Government over the wartime seizure of his oil tanker, the Guth Heil.Laughlin asserts that Russell and his other partners are not entitled to full share of the fees in the Thompson suit, as Laughlin says he performed most of the work on his own time, after office hours. Laughlin has prepared a detailed statement, showing he worked 137½ "personal hours" and 511½ "firm hours."ANTI-SMITH PAMPHLETS

GETS 30-DAY SENTENCEMrs. Miriam Noel Wright
Smashes Furniture in Ex-Husband's Cottage.Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 14.—
Found guilty of malicious mischief, Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright, sculptor and author, was sentenced to 30 days in the County Jail by Police Judge Claude Chambers today after she had admitted in court that she had damaged costly furnishings in the La Jolla suburban home of her estranged husband.Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally noted architect, Judge Chambers suspended the sentence for 10 days, providing that within that time Mrs. Wright must pay $300 for the damage wrought or serve the term.Mrs. Wright swore out a complaint against her estranged husband, who is reported to be in Los Angeles. On the basis of this a warrant was issued for the architect's arrest.Mrs. Wright declared that before going to the La Jolla home, she had applied to the District Attorney here for aid. "The District Attorney told me he could do nothing," she said. So I took the law into my own hands. If I had had 15 minutes more, there would have been nothing standing in that house.
The police came too soon."Mrs. Wright described the place as a "love nest" in which Wright and Mme. Olga Milanoff, a Montegrin dancer, were living. No one was at home when she made the raid. The Wright home is a small cottage at La Jolla, a suburb, and the architect was said to have had hundreds of dollars worth of valuable furniture and art objects there.On arriving at the Wright home, one of the finest bungalows in the exclusive suburb, she found only a Negro maid in the house. Infuriated because her husband and the dancer were not in, she then spent her wrath upon the household furnishings, police said.Mrs. Wright said that the one-year term for an interlocutory decree of divorce between herself and Wright has not yet expired and that she would once more attempt to prosecute him on a statutory charge.The Wrights received much publicity in 1926, when Mrs. Wright alleged she was denied entrance to the Wright estate at "Spring"
Green, Wis. She charged that Mrs.
Milanoff was living there at the time. In the same year Wright and the dancer were arrested at the instance of Mrs. Wright at a cottage at Lake Minnetonka, near Minneapolis. About that time Mrs.
Wright filed suit against Mrs.
Milanoff for $100,000 for alienation of her husband's affections.By the Associated Press.

OF WINE IS GIVEN TO HISTORICAL SOCIETYHenry Shaw, Founder of Botanical Garden, Brought
It From France.A 108-year-old bottle of "London Dock" sherry, brought from Europe in 1820 by Henry Shaw, was presented to Missouri Historical Society this week by Mark R.
Chartrand of Florida, member of an old St. Louis French family and son of a former Mayor of Carondelet.Shaw, who gave the people of St. Louis the world-famous Missouri Botanical Garden, bottled the sherry at his home, Tower Grove, in 1820. Sunday, Aug. 18, 1859, just a week before his death he gave a case of it to Chartrand.
Chartrand also presented to the society a mahogany box with quaint bottles for pomade and cologne which Shaw brought from France in 1820 and gave him that same Sunday.OIL MAN, 54, WEDS FORMER delphia Married.By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 14.—
Ernest Whitworth Marland, 54 years old, oil promoter of Oklahoma, and Miss Lydia Miller Roberts, 28, of Philadelphia, his former adopted daughter and niece by marriage, were married today at the home of the bride's parents at Flourtown, near here.They departed on their honeymoon by automobile. They will make their home at Ponca City, Ok.The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Nathaniel B. Gorton, rector of St. Thomas Protestant Episcopal Church, Whitmarsh, Pa.
The bride was given away by her father, George F. Roberts. There were no attendants and only a few guests.Marland adopted Miss Roberts 12 years ago. His first wife, who died June 6, 1924, was a sister of Miss Roberts' mother. The adoption was annulled in January to permit the marriage.Marland is president of the Mar-land Oil Co., with headquarters at Ponca City, where he recently opened a mansion, said to be valued at

PARIS EDITOR CHALLENGED TO DUEL OVER GEN. NOBILIS

Director of Roman Newspaper Challenges Editor of 'L'Espresso' to Duel Over Gen. Nobile's Rescue.

ROME, July 14.—Signor Bettini, the fighting editor of 'L'Espresso', has challenged the director of the Paris newspaper, 'Le Matin', to a duel for making what he regards as a reflection on Gen. Umberto Nobile's being saved first from the stranded crew of the Italia.

The challenge was inspired by an article printed in 'Le Matin' before the recent rescue of the Italia crew. This article listed all the members of the crew and ranked party who were then believed dead, and then added the following line:

"Only one saved—Nobile, chief of the expedition."

had a "fairly good" weather report when he took off, "except for thunderstorms" he was warned to expect almost anywhere en route.

Early Thursday afternoon Dr. James H. Kimball, head of the local Weather Bureau, said conditions for the flight Carranza contemplated, because of a general storm area extending southward from New York.

Authorities at Mitchell Field were notified of Carranza's death by the superintendent of the Central Railroad of New Jersey shortly after the discovery and identification of his body.

Carranza's father, Sebastian, an attaché of the Mexican Vice Consulate here, was being kept in ignorance of his son's fate last night by friends. He had waited anxiously all day for news of the Mexico-Excelsior but curiously enough little concern for the flyer was felt up to the time his body was found, the general belief being that failure of the plane to be sighted was due solely to thick weather.

Carranza Was Warned of Danger by Roosevelt Field Chief.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Lieut. Henry B. Clark, manager of Roosevelt Field, said that Capt. Carranza ignored expert advice when he took off in the face of bad weather for his return flight to Mexico City.

"My ground crew were available to him at all times and their expert advice was placed at his disposal," Lieut. Clark said, "but he ignored their advice."

Lieut. Clark said that on each of Carranza's attempts to take off, officials at the field were not notified to put out the ground crew.

"When he did go there was no one in authority at the field and no one in authority knew of his intention to leave," Lieut. Clark said.

"On the day he took off I pleaded with him personally not to go, telling him the weather was bad and that it would be a miracle if he got off the runway at all, as there was a strong south wind blowing across the runway and thunderstorms were approaching from the West."

DEMOCRATS PLAN BUDGET SYSTEM FOR CAMPAIGN

Head of Financial Committee Return to Albany With Smith to Discuss Campaign Costs.

HEADQUARTERS WILL BE IN NEW YORK

Branch for Mid-West to Be Either in St. Louis or Denver—Darrow Willing to Stump for Governor.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. ALBANY, N. Y., July 14.—Gov. Smith returned here last night with the dual ambition of achieving re-election and perfecting plans for his national campaign. For the moment, he made it clear, the first was more pertinent. But the problem of organization of his vote getting machinery will take up most of his time.

With the Governor came two men who will play major roles in the campaign—Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, who holds no specific post, and Herbert H. Lehman, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Democratic National Committee.

They will be the Governor's guests at the executive session over the week-end, and while no direct confirmation was received it was understood the first phase of financing the campaign, which Smith is determined shall set a precedent for efficiency, will be drawn up.

Reports of anticipated expenditures range anywhere from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000. Lehman, a Wall Street banker and a man of experience in politics, having managed the Governor's 1926 campaign, has declined to set any figure.

Fixed Budget System.

What is considered the most logical course of action of campaign plans is the establishment of the first headquarters and from its operation over a period of time, will be calculated the probable required sum. Smith and Lehman agree on the idea of running the campaign on a fixed budget.

As a result of his conference with the party leaders in New York, Smith is said to have decided his main headquarters shall be there, probably in the General Motors building where National Chairman John Raskob can best attend to the duties connected with the campaign and the financial affairs of General Motors.

The National Committee's headquarters in Washington will be continued, probably with an amplified mechanism, but it will be subsidiary to the main office in New York. The same subordination will apply to the Midwestern branch contemplated for St. Louis or Denver.

In the course of his conference with Western national committee men, Smith was advised that, with a judicious application of psychology there is more than a slight possibility the party might make inroads into heretofore Republican strongholds in the corn belt. For this reason it has been decided to build up a strong organization in the Midwest, probably handled by a Waterbury.

Intensive Campaign in Midwest.

For all the fact that all indications point to a warping of the campaign to the wooing of Wall Street and the West, it has been made manifest that the Democratic campaign in the Midwest will not be lacking in intensity.

"The task of bringing this area into the Democratic columns, it is believed, has been left to Senator Robinson, vice-president of the party. He is to make a tour of the campaign through the South and the border states, particularly in the latter. Ever a doubtful quantity in the presidential equation, the border states this year have become, in the Governor's mind, key positions.

Thus, while Gov. Smith himself confines his tour to 10 or 12 speeches, his running mate is expected to engage in indefatigable missionary work in those states where through political association and personal appeal he is considered strong.

Naturally, such plans are nebulous at the moment, and it is to the Governor said, and a final decision will not be reached before the organization of the advisory committee, composition of which is to be announced next week by the Governor. Senator Peter Gerry of Rhode Island, upon this committee will fall most of the physical strain of the campaign.

Prospects for Committee.

talent in the handling of campaign speakers, it is said, would find ample scope for activity on the committee.

Whether Raskob will visit the Governor Monday for another conference has not been decided, although there is a strong probability he will. In so far as it is practical the Governor is desirous of getting Smith in New York yesterday to pledge his support. He said he had not proffered his services as a speaker nor been invited to use them, but that he would speak, if the Governor wishes him.

Clarence Darrow, the liberal lawyer, who classifies himself as an independent Democrat, called on Gov. Smith yesterday to pledge his support. He said he had not proffered his services as a speaker nor been invited to use them, but that he would speak, if the Governor wishes him.

"I am very glad that Gov. Smith made a decided statement on the question of prohibition," he said. "The people have got the right to know the substance of the law, and I think something that I don't think has ever been done before. He told the convention just how he felt on the subject, and I think it will strengthen him all over the country, even with those people who are dry and the normal Democrats who are so dry that they would not have voted for him, even if he hadn't made the statement. It was the only thing for him to do."

Many Oppose Prohibition.

"I think a large percentage of the people of this country is not in favor of the present prohibition law. It is surprising to see how well Gov. Smith's candidacy has already been taken by the people. Mr. Smith, with those people who are dry and the normal Democrats who are so dry that they would not have voted for him, even if he hadn't made the statement. It was the only thing for him to do."

What issues will the women be most interested in? she was asked. "There are many great public problems that must enlist the interest of women," Mrs. Ross replied. "I know that you are thinking at once of prohibition. Of course, that is a very important problem in which every woman must be interested—prohibition and its enforcement."

"However, we assume, I am confident, that the women of this country, Democratic and Republican, realize that there are other public problems that are likewise of interest to the American people. I would say that chief among them is restoration of honesty in government, the problem of the farmer, looms as one of the most vital ones now confronting the nation. Not only to the farm women, but it is vital to all women in industry that it looms important before the whole nation."

Essential Qualification.

The suggestion was made that some women might think Gov. Smith "out of plain" and lacking in the "necessary dignity."

"There are a few essential qualifications above all others, that every patriotic citizen should want," Mrs. Ross said promptly. "They are ability and honesty and Gov. Smith possesses them in an eminent degree. I would say Gov. Smith is a splendid representative

RASKOB WILLING TO GIVE UP G. O. P. CLUB MEMBERSHIP

Democratic Chairman Says He Will Quit Union League Club if His New Post Embarrasses Others.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, July 14.—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has indicated his willingness to resign from the Union League here, if his membership in the organization, which has always been Republican and which has endorsed Secretary Hoover's candidacy for the presidency, should prove an embarrassment to the club because of his acceptance of the chairmanship.

At his summer home near Centerville, Md., Raskob said to questioners:

"I have no desire to embarrass the Union League. I shall be guided by the advice of the officers, and if it is found that continuance of my name on the rolls is embarrassing to the membership, I shall be glad to resign."

"About 10 years ago, when I became a member of the Union League, I let it be known that I had voted for Woodrow Wilson. I have never been officially affiliated with either the Republican or Democratic parties and have never voted at either a Republican or Democratic primary. I have always been an independent in politics."

Opportunity for Service.

"Now, however, I see an opportunity of performing some constructive service by helping to relieve the country of the damnable affliction of prohibition. I am proud to remain at my home before that important question and I accepted the chance to help him."

Raskob denied a report from Washington that he had urged President Coolidge to stop a candidate for the Republican nomination.

"I did not talk to the President about the campaign," Raskob said. "It always had been my opinion that Mr. Coolidge would be drafted, because as a business man I did not believe the Republican party would take a chance with a weaker candidate against the popularity of Mr. Smith."

Raskob emphasized emphatically, he had told a Washington correspondent that while he was a close friend of Smith, he preferred President Coolidge as a candidate.

Officials of the Union League said they regarded his appointment as Democratic chairman as a distinct aid to the chances of Hoover.

"Great Campaign Staff."

"It is great campaign staff," said Harold Bell, secretary of the league. Major-General William G. Price Jr., president of the Union League, who arrived yesterday from Europe, said this morning to Mr. Raskob to take action. Of course, the Union League is a Republican club, but I cannot see why it should be called an individual."

Gen. Price spoke highly of Raskob, and said he saw nothing unusual in the fact that a member of the league had changed his mind.

Patrolman Dohrman stood before the cathedral tower and whistled. A pigeon poked out an inquiring head from behind a stone ornament. Almost at once half a dozen birds were clustered at his feet and several were fluttering about him.

"There's the little white lady," he pointed out. "And there's the Boss," he added, as a chesty bird plucked a beakful of feathers from a too-greedy comrade.

"Yes, I guess I know them all by sight," he said.

"There are about 20 of them. I've always liked pigeons—raised them when I was a boy. I was nunching peanuts one day when I first came around here two months ago—that was when an infected arm kept me from riding my motorcycle—and I noticed the pigeons were hanging around. They were shy at first, but they soon got to know me. They won't come close to anybody else." (A reporter with a handful of peanuts wasn't able to lure the birds to him.)

HOOVER TO START FOR CALIFORNIA HOME TONIGHT

Republican Nominee, on Way to Palo Alto, Will Visit Dawes at Evanston Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 14.—Secretary Hoover will leave Washington tonight for his home at Palo Alto, Cal., where on Aug. 11 he will be formally informed of his nomination for the presidency and deliver his address of acceptance.

Stenographers, reporters and camera men will accompany him. He will have as his guest Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican leader of the House, and as head of the Eastern Speakers' Bureau, a prominent figure in the campaign.

Arriving in Chicago tomorrow afternoon a layover of four hours will be spent with Vice President Dawes at his home in Evanston, a visit regarded by political observers as evidence of vanishing pre-convention differences.

Will Visit Coolidge.

From Chicago the party will go directly to the summer White House on the Bruin River in Wisconsin. Two days will be spent with the President and Hoover, who is an enthusiastic and inveterate angler, may give Coolidge some competition in landing trout.

Plans for Reception.

The Douglas County Hoover Club and the Douglas County Republican Club have completed preliminary arrangements for the reception to Secretary Hoover upon his arrival at Bruin.

The two organizations expect a crowd of about 5000 at the station. Hoover will be welcomed in the city by a reception committee composed of all State and local Federal officials, all members of the Republican County Committee, all local candidates on the Republican ticket, all officers of the Progressive Republican Club and members of the Hoover Club.

Hoover will be driven to Cedar Island lodge in an open car and will be followed by his reception committee in automobiles to the city limits.

The literary calls for the candidate's arrival in San Francisco next Friday. A reception and celebration are being planned in the Pacific Coast city and with this concluded, Hoover will motor to his home in Palo Alto.

In the three weeks between his notification and the time he will leave for his home, Hoover will have an opportunity to finish the preparation of his speech accepting the nomination, in which he has promised a free discussion of campaign issues.

Use of Hoover's last acts as a Cabinet member was to call in the newspaper men assigned to the Commerce Department and thank them for their co-operation during his tenure of office. He is one of the three Cabinet members still in office who received their portfolios from the last President, Woodrow Wilson, in 1921.

Others are Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Secretary Davis of the Labor Department.

Committeemen to Meet.

The national committeemen of the Republican party met today by Mrs. Alvin T. Herr of Kentucky, a vice chairman of the national committee, to a conference on campaign plans, July 24.

Appointment of A. H. Kitchin, managing editor of the Buffalo News, as assistant director of publicity, was announced by Work Kitchin, a former Washington correspondent, will assist Henry J. Tamm, Kansas, the director of publicity.

Work has set Aug. 1 as the date for the meeting of national committeemen, committeemen and State chairmen of the Middle West in Chicago.

Gen. Nobile Pays Tribute To Heroism of Dr. Malmgren, Who Died Urging Comrades On

Rescue of Others by Ship Krassin Confirms His Surmise That All Those Missing Are Close to Red Tent Camp.

By GEN. UMBERTO NOBILIS. Commander-in-Chief of the Lost Dirigible Italia.

ABOARD THE CITTA DI MILANO, Virgo Bay, July 13.—Our great joy at the rescue of my valiant comrades is marred by the tragic news that Dr. Finn Malmgren, my dear friend and invaluable co-operator, died a month ago.

The view I expressed quite recently that the Malmgren party must have remained at the Red Tent at a short distance from the Red Tent camp has been confirmed by the events of the last 24 hours. This increases my hope that the rescue party of seven men who fell with the ill-fated dirigible may also be found by the searchers spreading fan-wise 20 to 30 kilometers east of the Red Tent camp.

The preliminary report of Maj. Zappi says that Dr. Malmgren was suddenly seized on June 4 with frostbite in his feet followed by rapid loss of strength. Maj. Zappi says: "He lay where he fell, knowing that his hour had struck and imploring us to leave him to his fate. We did all we could for him, but his strength ebbed away very fast. He died like a hero. Almost with his last words he urged us to seek help for Gen. Nobile and the rest of the stranded men."

Tribute to Malmgren.

The world is poorer for the loss of such a man. The death of this worthy son of Sweden will ever be recalled by us as an inspiring example of the heroism which can be claimed by any nation.

Maj. Zappi adds in his report that his own physical condition is fairly good, while Maj. Mariano, although much weakened, does not appear to be in any danger. This is confirmed by the report of the physician aboard the Krassin.

Both men went without food for the last 12 days, having lost part of their supplies during a blinding snowstorm at the beginning of June. Maj. Zappi says also that he had been listening for 20 hours to the distant roar of the Krassin's airplane without seeing it.

They were unable to rescue the two men because the place did not appear safe for landing a large plane. They returned to their base and then flew back to Foy Island with a Finnish plane which took the Sora patrol off.

Norway Proposes Permanent Memorial for Dr. Malmgren.

STOCKHOLM, July 14.—The tragic fate of Dr. Finn Malmgren, Swedish victim of the Italia disaster, has awakened a desire for some permanent memorial to the scientist.

The Swedish Geographical Society was planning such a memorial today but national participation also was proposed.

Even Hedin, an explorer, suggested that a meteorological station in Greenland would be the finest memorial as a knowledge of atmospheric conditions in the interior of Greenland would be of the greatest importance in forecasting the weather in Sweden.

Norwegian Premier Praises Men Who Rescued Italia Crew.

OSLO, Norway, July 14.—A plea against hasty judgment as to responsibility for the disaster to the Italia polar expedition was voiced today by J. I. Mowinkel, Prime Minister of Norway, in an interview with the newspaper Dagbladet.

"The whole world is anxiously awaiting an explanation of the Italia drama," said the Premier. "But no hasty judgments must be formed. While Nobile's narrative of the flight and the wreck is somewhat obscure, nobody should attack a man suffering under such misfortunes as he is enduring."

Mowinkel added that the Nobile expedition, like others of similar character, would undoubtedly be made the subject of thorough investigations by several sources.

TWO ITALIA SURVIVORS TELL OF HARDSHIPS

Zappi and Mariano Went Without Food for 13 Days—Left Malmgren Behind.

(Copyright, 1928.) By the Associated Press. ABOARD THE RUSSIAN ICE-BREAKER KRASSIN IN ARCTIC.

July 14.—Dr. Finn Malmgren, Swedish meteorologist on the ill-fated expedition on the dirigible Italia, died from exhaustion on June 15 and it was not until then that Capt. Filippo Zappi and Albert Mariano left him to push on, the two rescued men disclosed today in telling of their bitter experiences before being rescued by the Krassin.

The men said that all the members of the crew of the Italia who were in the front of the gondola at the moment of the crash on May 25 suffered injury. Capt. Zappi lay three days with a bruised chest.

For five days Zappi, Mariano and Malmgren remained with the other members of the Nobile party and then started out to search for land. "In two weeks Dr. Malmgren succumbed to the hardships and we were forced to leave him on the ice," said Zappi. "We walked on with the greatest difficulty, until overwhelmed by the impossible icy hills surrounded by water. Thirteen days before we were sighted our food supply ended and Capt. Mariano's leg had frozen, so that we could move no further."

"For 10 days we remained on ice cake, hopeless and helpless until we sighted Pilot Chukhovsky's airplane. On the next day, Mariano, lying ill on the ice, heard the sound of a siren. We thought that it was a mistake and that we had imagined it, but then we saw the smoke of the Krassin."

"We never believed that a ship could go so far and had hoped only for rescue from the air. Having no contact with the world we knew nothing of the many expeditions that had set out. With tears, we met our saviors on the Krassin."

The condition of Zappi is satisfactory. Mariano, however, is in a serious condition although he is improving.

The Krassin is going ahead, groping through the fog, in an effort to find the group of six men carried off in the bag of the Italia on May 25. At the same time it has sent messages to the base ship Citta di Milano at Kings Bay asking for the approximate location of the place where the group is likely to be found. The ice, which seemed less dense during the last few days, again is growing heavy.

When the first reports of the rescue of Capt. Mariano and Zappi were received from the Krassin they were interpreted as indicating that Dr. Malmgren's body had been recovered. Later reports, however, said that the noted meteorologist had died on Brock Island and that his body had been pushed there while the two Italians pushed on in an effort to reach land.

WATCHES FOR MAN WHO HELD HIM UP, CAUSES HIS ARREST

Filling Station Owner Sees Robber Leave Cafe; Prisoner Admits One Theft.

The determination of William C. Kahn, Standard Oil Co. filling station manager, to catch the man who twice held him up in the station at Whittier street and Washington boulevard, resulted today in the arrest of a man who admitted one of the holdups, but denied participation in the other.

When Kahn, having been robbed of $45 on June 2, was held up again on June 13 and robbed of $101, he decided to keep an eye out for the holdup man, who, he declares, committed both robberies. Several times since, he told police men, he has seen him in the neighborhood of the station, but has never been able to catch him.

This morning he saw his man leaving a restaurant on Sarah and Olive streets. He called policemen, who circled through the neighborhood and finally arrested the man. He had a loaded revolver in his pocket, and admitted he had committed the robbery of June 2, police said, but denied that of June 13.

BRANNON GETS HOME ON A DOUBLE STEAL; WEST SLUGS BALL

By Jack Alexander
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The Browns hung up their thirteenth victory over the Senators in the opening game of a series here.

The score was 4 to 2.

Sam Gray pitched and the victory was his thirteenth of the season, against six defeats.

Brannon got home on a double steal with Manush in the seventh. West of Washington hit three doubles in a row.

Lloyd Brown, a young left-hander, imported from Memphis at the start of the season, was on the mound for the Senators. The weather was threatening and about 2000 were on hand when play was started.

Oscar Melillo, reserve second baseman, is back with the Browns after missing a week due to a sprained shin. He joined the team during its last day in Boston, but the game was rained out and all Oscar got was the ride from Chicago.

The game:

FIRST INNING—Browns—McNeely walked and went to third when Brannon singled to right. Barnes made a fine catch of Manush's drive and McNeely scored after the catch. Schulte walked. Kress was called out on strikes. One run.

WASHINGTON—West singled to center. Harris fouled to Blue. Barnes was called out on strikes. Goslin to Blue, unassisted.

SECOND—Browns—J'Fourke flied to West. Schanz walked. Gray forced Schanz. Reeves to Gray. McNeely tripled to the right field wall, scoring Gray. Brannon flied to West. One run.

WASHINGTON—Judge singled to right. Reeves forced Judge. Gray to Kress. Blue grabbed Blue's foul pop. Ruel lined to McNeely.

THIRD—Browns—Manush flied to Goslin. Schulte struck at the third strike and took first on a passed ball. Kress lined to Barnes. Schulte was out stealing. Ruel to Reeves.

WASHINGTON—Manush ran in for Brown's short fly. West flied to Schulte. Harris walked. Barnes fanned.

FOURTH—Browns—Blue grounded to Bluece. O'Rourke singled to center. On the hit and run play, Schanz singled to right. Bluece flied to third. Gray was called out on strikes. Brown holding the ball. O'Rourke and Schanz tried a double steal and O'Rourke was out at the plate. Brown to Ruel.

WASHINGTON—Goslin tripled to right center. Judge flied to Manush and Goslin scored after the catch. Reeves was called out on strikes. Bluece got a hit off Brannon's glove. Ruel rolled to Gray.

FIFTH—Browns—McNeely fanned. Brannon was called out on strikes. Manush beat out a hit off Brown's glove. Schulte flied to Goslin.

SIXTH—Browns—Brown struck out. West hit a double off the right field wall. Manush ran in for Harris' pop. Barnes walked. Goslin flied to McNeely.

SEVENTH—Browns—Brown tossed out Kress. Blue fouled to Ruel. O'Rourke flied to Barnes. O'Rourke flied to Judge. Brown flied to Goslin.

EIGHTH—Browns—Schanz singled to second. Gray sacrificed. Brown to Harris, covering first. McNeely flied to Goslin. Brannon walked. Manush singled to right, scoring Schanz and sending Brannon to third. On a double steal, Brannon scored and Manush was safe at second. Schulte fouled to Judge.

TWO RUNS—WASHINGTON—Kress threw Ruel. Tate batted for Brown

GENE TUNNEY TO ENGAGE IN HARD WORKOUT TODAY

By the Associated Press.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 14.—

This usually tranquil community where Gene Tunney is training for the defense of his world's heavyweight title against Tom Heenev, 12 days hence was all agog today over the first coming of Tex Rickard, promoter of the contest.

Tunney ordered about 300 tickets for friends and when Rickard first filled the order, but 20 of the seats were nearer to the ringside than the 20th row. When Gene displayed irritability, Rickard offered to take back the tickets and try to locate Tunney's friends in better spots.

Rickard's real purpose in making his first trip to this Lake Pleasant resort, is to witness the champion's signature to the official contract for the fight.

Tunney refused to listen to suggestions that he postpone his ring work until Rickard reached the scene but did agree to break his long standing rule against training on Sunday to entertain his guests.

Tunney planned to go through an extra brick workout this afternoon to make up for his holiday yesterday, when he did nothing but a few miles of hiking.

Gene seized his free hours to clean up his two weeks accumulation of correspondence. When this was done, he rowed from his secluded cabin to the hotel where he dined.

Heenev to Resume His Work Tonight

By the Associated Press.

FATHAVEN, N. J., July 14.—

Refreshed by a 24-hour layoff, Tom Heenev will resume boxing tonight, working out under the glare of lights.

The ring is in a field adjoining the barn in which he does his bag punching, shadow boxing and other gymnasium exercises, in preparation for his battle with Gene Tunney.

Rain, which started falling early in the morning and did not let up until noon, forced Heenev to suspend all training activity yesterday. He did not move out of his quarters until night, when he went to Long Branch, N. J., to give a cheer to Phil Mercurio, one of his sparring boys in his one fight with the veteran Battling Levinsky.

If present plans are carried out, Heenev will continue to work out rights until the finish of his training grind. He likes to box at night because it is cooler in the open field. He works so strenuously that he melted off four to six pounds every time he performed in the oppressive heat of midday.

Charley Harvey, Heenev's American manager, is satisfied to have him work at night.

"Another English fighter I managed one time, Jim Driscoll, did all his training at night," Harvey said. "Driscoll even used to do his road work in the darkness of night. He was one of the greatest fighters that ever lived and if he could get into condition working at night I see no reason why Tom shouldn't."

Morgan-Martin Bout Postponed Again By Rain

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The much delayed junior lightweight title battle between Tod Morgan, Seattle titleholder, and Cannonball Eddie Martin, suffered another postponement tonight. Humbert F. Fugazy, metropolitan promotional rival of Tex Rickard, said intermittently rains that lasted all day made it impossible to stage the show at Ebbets Field tonight as he had planned. He set next Wednesday as a new date.

DREWES ENTERS FINAL ROUND OF MUNY NET PLAY

By Gerald Holland.

OF THE POST-DISPATCH SPORT STAFF.

FOREST PARK, July 14.—Ted

Drewes, defending champion, and National Public Parks champion, entered the final round of the Public Parks tennis tournament here this afternoon by defeating Herbert Weinstock in three sets in their semifinal match, 7-5, 6-1, 6-3.

The defending champion had trouble in getting started in the initial set, and several games went to deuce score. His game improved after the first set, however, and he swept through the second and third sets without much trouble.

Hafey Has Batted To .576 Average In Nine Games

CHICK HAFEY, who went back into the Cardinals' lineup as a regular, July 14, following the injury to Walter Rottger, has hit .576 in nine games, not including today's tilt, and as a result has brought his season's average from .261 to .295, a gain of 34 points.

In the nine contests, Hafey has made 15 hits in 34 trips to the plate. His safeties include seven doubles, two triples and three home runs, giving him a total base park of 30, or better than two bases on each hit. He has scored 14 runs and driven in 15. Thus he has been responsible for more than three tallies each game.

ITALIAN TEAM LOSES DOUBLES IN CUP MATCH

By the Associated Press.

MILAN, Italy, July 14.—Czechoslovakia took the lead in the European zone final Davis cup contest with Italy by winning today's doubles match. Jan Kozeluh and P. Macenauer sprang a surprise by defeating the Italians, Baron de Morpurgo and P. Gaslini, in four sets, 8-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

WOMEN'S GOLF EVENT ATTRACTS FIELD OF 73

Seventy-three women golfers of the St. Louis District Association competed in the Omega Hills Country Club's invitation tournament yesterday afternoon.

The tournament was won by Mrs. Ferris of Woodlawn, with Mrs. C. Seelers runner-up. The low gross prize was taken by Mrs. I. S. Hynes. Four were tied in the competition for the fewest putts and Mrs. McGaughey won in the playoff.

Another tie resulted in the blind bogey with seven competitors deadlocked and in the draw Mrs. Andy Bauer won. Mrs. W. E. Neuberger won the surprise event.

BISSONNETTE KNOCKS 18TH HOME RUN OFF ALEXANDER IN SEVENTH

By W. J. McGoogan

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, July 14.—The Cardinals suffered a reverse this afternoon at the hands of the Brooklyn Dodgers in the opening game of a series.

The score was 5 to 2.

Grover Alexander allowed only two singles in six innings. In the seventh Herman and Bressler doubled and Bissonette knocked his eighteenth home run off the season into the pavilion.

Jess Petty hurled for the visitors. With the Giants playing in Cincinnati, a victory for the Cardinals would enable them to draw further away from one or the other of the two chief contenders for the league lead, now held by St. Louis.

About 7500 persons attended.

FIRST INNING—BROOKLYN—

—Carey bunted safely toward first. Hendrick flied to Douthit.

Holm threw out Herman. Bressler flied to Harper.

SECOND—BROOKLYN—Bissonette walked. Flowers lined to Alexander, whose throw to Bottomley doubled Bissonette on first. Bancroft flied to Hafey.

THIRD—BROOKLYN—Gooch grounded to Hig. High tossed out Petty. Carey singled through the box. Hendrick flied to Douthit.

CARDINALS—Maranville tripled to left and scored on Alexander's sacrifice fly to Herman. Douthit singled over second. Holm forced Douthit, Petty to Bancroft. Flowers went into center field for Hig's fly.

ONE RUN.

FOURTH—BROOKLYN—Herman bunted and Alexander threw him out. Holm made a wonderful glove-hand catch of Bressler's low line drive. Alexander tossed out Bissonette.

CARDINALS—Bottomley singled to right. Hafey fouled to Bissonette. Harper forced Bottomley. Flowers to Bancroft. Harper was out stealing. Gooch to Bancroft.

FIFTH—BROOKLYN—Maranville threw out Flowers. Bancroft was out. Bottomley unassisted. Gooch struck out.

CARDINALS—Hendrick threw out Wilson. Maranville singled to left. Alexander singled to right. Maranville stopping at second. Douthit forced Alexander. Bancroft to Flowers. Holm flied to Herman.

SIXTH—BROOKLYN—Petty was called out on strikes. Carey lined to Hafey. Hendrick grounded to Bottomley.

CARDINALS—High singled off Petty's glove. High stole second as Bottomley was called out on strikes. Hafey doubled down the left field line, scoring High. Harper walked. Wilson popped to Flowers. Maranville flied to Bressler.—ONE RUN.

SEVENTH—BROOKLYN—Herman doubled to right. Bressler doubled to right center, scoring Herman. Bissonette hit into the right field pavilion for a home run, scoring behind Bressler. It was Bissonette's eighteenth home run of the year. Flowers singled to left. High threw out Bancroft. Gooch was out the same way. Flowers moving to third. Alexander tossed out Petty. THREE RUNS.

CARDINALS—Frisch batted for Alexander and grounded to Bancroft. Douthit singled to left. Holm singled to right. Douthit stopping at second. High lined to Flowers, whose throw to Bancroft doubled Douthit off second.

EIGHTH—BROOKLYN—Johnson went in to pitch for the Cardinals. Gooch grounded to Bottomley. Hendrick lined to Hafey.

Pollock Wins Title.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 14.—Julius Pollock of Wheeling won the West Virginia amateur golf championship here yesterday by defeating Forrest McNeil of Clarkburg, one up.

"SNIPING FROM REAR" PUZZLES OLIMPIC STARS

By Alan J. Gould
Associated Press Sports Editor
STEAMSHIP PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ENROUTE TO AMSTERDAM, July 14.—The series of protests, back home, against the method used in selecting the American Olympic team, finds leaders of Uncle Sam's athletes bound for Olympic conquest at Amsterdam, puzzled and a bit hurt.
This "sniping from the rear" as it is termed by Major-General Douglas MacArthur, chairman of the Olympic Committee, has not succeeded, however, in breaking down the morale of the athletes. Replying to critics of the team and the manner of its selection, MacArthur said that the team "seems puzzled at the sudden attack which has been made upon it just as it was sailing for foreign shores."
"These fine young Americans," he went on to say, "do not understand this sniping from the rear but as yet it has not affected their splendid morale and they appear serene and determined. They feel intuitively, in spite of criticism, that America's heart still is with each and every one of them."
MacArthur's slap at the team's critics followed announcement by the New York A. C. that it was sponsoring a European trip for five athletes who failed to qualify for the American Olympic squad. The club said it would seek to force their inclusion on the team before the final entries are forwarded to Amsterdam July 19. Falling in line with the quintet which includes Pat Elkins and Roland Locke, former University of Nebraska stars, are Weems Baskin, crack hurdler, Matt McGrath, veteran hammer thrower and Norton Jackson, wrestler, would be entered in other international competition after the Olympic games, the New York A. C. announced.
MacArthur said that if an appeal was presented on behalf of these men it would be acted upon immediately by the Olympic Committee. Notwithstanding this announcement, there was little sympathy for any belief that Locke, Elkins and their companions would succeed in gaining a place on the team. It was understood that no changes in the personnel were contemplated. In fact the selection committee was reported to be opposed to any change unless new facts to justify it were produced.

Ball Players Stick to Game Even When They Could Retire

By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, July 14.—Salaries as paid out by the major league clubs hold their attraction for the vast majority of the players the American and National Leagues, but to a much smaller group is the urge to play the game that ranks above the desire for added cash.

There is the case of Frankie Threl, the St. Louis Cardinal catcher, and second baseman, who would profit well if he would leave the footprints of his wealthy father, who is in the linen import-business in New York. But Frankie prefers to dance around round base.

And there is Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the Georgia peach, now named the outer garden for the Philadelphia Athletics. Cobb was one of the first of the diamond stars to become known as wealthy.

Leaving his money through a few lucky and wise plays on the stock market and careful handling of his life insurance.

Lure of Game Holds Them.
"I like to play," said Frankie Threl, the St. Louis Cardinal catcher, and second baseman, who would profit well if he would leave the footprints of his wealthy father, who is in the linen import-business in New York. But Frankie prefers to dance around round base.

And there is Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the Georgia peach, now named the outer garden for the Philadelphia Athletics. Cobb was one of the first of the diamond stars to become known as wealthy.

Leaving his money through a few lucky and wise plays on the stock market and careful handling of his life insurance.

HREE, GENERAL
MADWICK DEERING

SYNOPSIS.

Old John Fybus, formerly a seakiller in London and later Winterbourn, is serving as porter in an inn at Castle Raven when his son, Conrad, visits him there. He's been estranged from both his sons since the beginning of the war and they have lost track of him. He hastens to tell his mother, Probyn, that he has seen his father. Probyn's son, since Fybus had believed his grandfather dead, but he looked him up at the Strand without telling his parents of his going. When Lance, finding at Cambridge he takes a room in London and after gaining at his father's reluctant consent a small allowance sets himself to writing. In London Lance meets and is attracted to Olive Gadsden, a sinnikin.

Life's essential mysticism. He began to feel things understandingly, for mysticism is knowing by feeling, and life is recreated and carried on by every man feeling things afresh. The great similitudes recur and are eternal. Lance felt cooled and calmed by the rain. The gray landscape retained its beauty. He walked on the village, bought his cigarette, and returned to the island with a wet head and a secret serenity. He felt strangely gentle towards

Importance of
The ShouldersBy Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOUR boy ought to have good shoulders. It is rather up to you to see that he does develop this valuable index to his physical efficiency.

Mumford made careful measurements of the boys in his school to see whether there is any connection between adequate and healthy physical growth and scholastic attainment. He kept the boys' height, weight, chest, girth, upper and lower arm girth, scholastic progress, general judgment of the Head Master on his work and conduct, judgment as to his general health by the medical officer, the time he spent on travel, and so on.

A carefully-modified system of grading the measurements was adopted so as to show the degree in which each boy surpassed or fell behind another boy. It also showed which boys were in need of ample physical exercise or were overworking and not properly developing.

Added to the measurements were tests devised for the Alf-Force to show how the boys breathed.

It was soon found that there was no single ideal boy whom all other should copy. It did show, however, that there were natural and essential differences among the boys. After much searching Mumford found that the best single point to consider as an index of shape and health was the poise and shape of the shoulder. With good shoulders he found, as a tailor had already told him, went healthy abdominal muscles and good breathing.

These observations of Mumford are very important. They point to the fact that the term physical fitness is too often regarded as a general certificate of security against disability or danger from disease, but it is really only valuable when there is added to it some description of the purpose for which the individual is "physically fit." Every kind of athletic exercise makes its own special demands on body form and breathing action, and what is best for one is bad for another.

Schoolboys need to take part in physical activities. They must prepare for examinations. Still more important is the fact that they must get adapted and prepared for a wider and even more strenuous future where they will have to look after themselves. Therefore, the teacher, the parent and, above all, the school medical officer, must look for and recognize the differences in physical individuals in relation to adult as well as to school life.

While the pupils are developing in the time to deal with anything that is likely to be a handicap. Dr. Mumford found that in many cases to predict, from the shape and movements of the chest of a boy of 11 or 12, the directions in which his physical activities would most likely develop. He made it the guide for advice on the particular game which would do most to call out the lad's powers or to make good his deficiencies.

For instance, the well-developed shoulders with narrow chests call for lacrosse and tennis, even golf, which encourages the widest use of the arms and shoulders. The gymnastic exercises should be directed more especially to shoulder and chest development. The tendency in older boys to neglect the "student slouch" attitude in standing and walking should be most strenuously resisted. It is a dangerous affectation. The hat on the back of the head, the chin thrust forward, the shoulders stooped, the abdominal muscles relaxed, with a grave continuance of imitation of profound thought, are more generally the signs of a shallow pate than of a capable mind. When you see a fellow of that kind, punch him between the shoulders, push his hat to the top of his head and make him stand up like a man.

THREE GENERATIONS
WARWICK DEEPINGAUTHOR OF SORRELL AND SON

SYNOPSIS.

Old John Pybus, formerly a bookbinder in London and later a publisher in an inn at Castle Wimburn, is serving his winter in an inn at Castle Wimburn. He has been married to his son, Conrad, since the beginning of the war. They have lost track of him. Conrad has to tell his father, Pybus, that he has been his father. Pybus's son, Lance Pybus, had believed his father dead, but he looks up at the Saracen's Head and tells his parents of the meeting. When Lance finds his father's reluctant consent and a small allowance, he writes himself to writing. In London Lance meets and is attracted to Olive Gadsden, a bookbinder.

Mary Morris, a friend of Old Pybus, takes care of a blind sister.

INSTALLMENT XLIII.

OLIVE GROWS ANGRY.
CROSSING those wet fields under the gray sky and the dripping elms, Lance seemed to walk with a lost self that had been recovered; and the figure of the craftsman became a woman. Yes, bad work hurt; but you more than did bad work; for bad work, unless you are ruthless in destruction, reverts to a small, misty, misty blackmail. And the figure of your consciousness became blurred and tarnished; the figure of your restraint was loosened. Pausing by a field gate under an old beech tree, he listened to the drippings from the leaves, while the soul of him reached out to the essential mysticism. He came to feel things understandingly, for mysticism is knowing by feeling, and life is recreated and carried on by every man feeling things afresh. The great sin of the soul is not to feel. Lance felt cooled and calmed by the rain. The gray landscape revealed its beauty. He walked on the village, bought his cigarettes, and returned to the island with a head and a secret serenity. He felt strangely gentle towards the world, and to that piece of life under the green canopy of the punt.

Oliver! He had become conscious of the subtle crudeness of the affair, and of the damage such a thing inflicted. It cut away at ideals, it blurred his vision; it tricked you into accepting easy, false things. Was it not true that his splittings into a false ideal had begun with this sex creature.

He hesitated for a moment on the top of the bank. The ending of the intimacy was no easy matter, and with this sudden feeling of gentleness possessing him, he even doubted for a moment whether you ended such an affair. Or did it end itself? Yet there was a ruthlessness in him that cried out that it would have to be ended. He wanted to get back to work—the real work. He was in growing fever to efface that moody phase. The mood of gentleness would change into a matter of patience, and haste. It came him effort to slither down the bank, and raise the canvas flap. He met him with her actress' smile.

"O, boy, you are clever." She waved a white flag that was his manuscript.

"Well—and clever. What a mop a head! But I say—this is one of the funniest things I've ever read. It's a yell."

He climbed in with a very serious and unsmiling face.

"Like it?"

"It's lovely. But you're cruel. You do take people off. I'm really awfully scared of you." Extracting the box of cigarettes from a mackintosh pocket, he handed it to her, but without looking at her face.

"So—it strikes you—as good?"

"Topping. Of course, it's a bit odd, but that's just what people like. Even the old ladies love being shocked, the old humbugs. But how do you like it?"

"Why—how do you know about such things? If you had asked me, I should have said that some very priceless person of 40 had written it. Some raffish old writer."

"Tea, a seedy old blighter with the paint worn off him. I get my dear. But—the seedy old blighters are apt to be sentimental. Some young thing of three and twenty. Very young stuff. Gentle, but the rain has got right down my back."

On that Sunday morning, Lance woke very early. The rain had not ceased, for he could hear the drip of it on the canvas from the boughs of the elder tree, and for a while he lay and listened to it. But presently, being full of the wakefulness of a new inspiration, he slipped a hand under the canvas and raised it until it was clear of the punt's gunwale. He looked at the river. He saw it as a sheet of gray water spreading beyond the green opening of the backwater, with dim beech woods rising beyond it. Everything was smothered by rain. And yet, as he lay on his side and looked long and steadily at the water and the woods, he knew that, somehow, his old way of seeing things had come back to him.

By mutual consent they returned to town by an afternoon train. They sat at opposite ends of the carriage and looked out of opposite windows, for there was a constraint between them, and the gray chill of the river dawn seemed to linger. They were alone together, yet not alone, while very conscious of each other. If he appeared absorbed in the wet landscape and his own thoughts, she—from her corner—threw an occasional chafed glance at his half-averted profile and his willful preoccupation.

She was angry. Men were so much of a nuisance, so fickle, so inconsistent, and though she was vaguely aware of him as a winged Mercury poised for an upward flight, she still wished to hold him, because—in a way—he had been hers. Cold, clean, ruthless, soaring youth! For, somehow, he reminded her of the poised figure in Piccadilly Circus, so alive though so motionless above the chaotic crowd.

But as the train neared Paddington she slipped across to him, and put her chin upon his shoulder.

"Boy—what's the matter?" She felt his irresponsive rigidity.

"Nothing. I was thinking something out."

"Awful serious fellow! What about—tonight?"

His reply was abrupt.

"Work, my dear—much work. It is boiling up in me. I have got just five weeks."

"What for?"

"O, for the book. I've promised it—for the end of September. It will have to be done."

She withdrew herself.

"That's the sort of thing, my dear, a man says to his wife."

At No. 7 Parham Crescent a sympathetic and inquisitive Mrs. Gasson brought Olive up her tea. She brought the tray on the table by the window and turned to watch the girl who, seated on the edge of her bed, was changing her stockings. Olive had come in with a thin, peevish face, and eyes dejected. Obviously, the weather had not been kind to the lovers, but Mrs. Gasson could recall days in her own youth when hailstones and hurricanes would not have mattered.

"Now, you drink our tea, dearie."

Olive tossed the discarded stockings into a corner.

"Filthy weather. I've not a pair of stockings, either."

"There, dearie, you've been quarreling. You drink a cup of nice hot tea. Nothin' like it. A cup of tea's saved me from suicide many a time."

She went to pour it out, added two lumps of sugar, and carried the cup to the girl.

"Such weather! Enough to damp a bloomin' Venus. Wasn't he loving, dearie? Men get such moods."

Said the girl on the bed, sulkily stirring the sugar in the cup: "I'm not going to let him off."

Result of Inquiry Into Federal Patronage.

EX-MARSHAL AND NEGRO LEADER HELD

20 More Witnesses Called, in Addition to More Than 200 Waiting to Be Heard in Investigation at Biloxi.

By The Associated Press.

BILOXI, Miss., July 14.—Further disclosures are expected from the federal grand jury here investigating distribution of federal patronage by State Republican leaders following the return before adjournment today of a fourth indictment against a person federal officials declined to name pending his arrest. The nature of the charge also was kept secret.

Two men, J. C. Tanshill, former United States Marshal for the southern district of the State, and E. L. Patton, Negro Republican leader, already are in custody of federal officers following their arrest in Jackson today on six indictments charging "purchase and sale of public offices." The District Attorney's office late today said immediate trials would be sought for the men after their arraignment here.

Patton long has been prominent in Republican political affairs and has been a delegate to every national convention in the last 25 years.

Indications that the grand jury has only commenced its labors were seen by the issuance today of upward of 20 subpoenas for witnesses to augment the more than 200 already waiting to be heard. The investigation is expected to continue through next week.

Although new developments are expected from the grand jury when it reconvenes at 10 o'clock Monday morning, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General, who has been assisting the grand jury, announced she would return to Washington to be at her desk probably by Monday. She is leaving the investigation in charge of Millar McGilchrist, special prosecutor for the Department of Justice.

Attorneys representing Alfred F. Cook, former postmaster at Leakeville, Miss., who was arrested yesterday and who is a witness still to be heard by the grand jury, said today the jury intended to press for an immediate arraignment of their client and his release on bond. Cook is charged with having falsely entered sums of $250 each for Miss Sally Houston, Patton and Ella Green, Leakeville postoffice clerks, on his payroll report, setting forth they were for services rendered.

FRANCE BARS FIRECRACKERS IN BASTILLE DAY CELEBRATION

For First Time Rule Against Noise-Makers Is Enforced; Children Indignant.

PARIS, July 14.—French children celebrated Bastille Day with unusual indifference today. For the first time the joy of venting their patriotic sentiments with firecrackers and torpedoes was denied them. Firecrackers were theoretically prohibited several years ago, but police heretofore had overlooked the regulation.

French boys who jumped out of bed in the early hours of the morning and hastened to the stores where fireworks are sold were turned back coldly with the declaration: "No firecrackers this year. Pinwheels, snakes, colored fire, roman candles, but no noise makers."

The authorities tried to make up for the suppression of firecrackers by multiplying public displays of fireworks, but failed to propitiate young France.

There was plenty of beer to quench the thirst of several millions who braved the howling heat to dance in the streets.

Henry Ford on Hoover Committee.
WASHINGTON, July 14.—Acceptance by Henry Ford of the vice presidency of the Hoover-for-President Engineers' National Committee was announced today by Chairman Work of the Republican National Committee. With more than 60 branch organizations throughout the country, the engineers committee is instituting both men and women's State central committees to work in the interest of the Hoover candidacy.
